

ROBERT MACHIN

EXECUTIVE COACH, MANAGEMENT CONSULTANT & FACILITATOR

Robert has led executive teams and managed major projects for more than 30 years and believes that coaching is the essential leadership style to optimise individual and team performance in the age of knowledge workers.

Robert's extensive experience across public, private, large, and small organisations has given him deep insight into the challenges facing leaders in today's turbulent world. He leverages this experience and insight when working with his clients to create realistic goals and practical solutions. The knowledge he brings to each coaching engagement is greatly valued by his clients.

Robert's coaching employs evidence-based principles from the disciplines of management and psychology. He has helped his clients achieve exceptional performance both personally and professionally.

He is a trained coach and a member of the International Coaching Federation (ICF).
